The Virginian
1931

Dawning

Somewhere
A light gleams,
A beacon
To higher things,
Larger it looms
As onward we go,
Till at last
It shines
O'er life's sea
As bright as the sun
At dawn,
Giving faith,
Hope, courage—
Courage to face
The world anew.

—PAULINE GIBB. '31.

The Virginian
1931
Volume 30
Annual Publication of the Students of State Teachers
College
Farmville Virginia

Dedication

With affection and appreciation we dedicate this issue of The Virginian to our friend,

MR. T. A. McCORKLE,

whose cheerfulness, encouragement, and untiring efforts have ever inspired us to higher ideals

MR. T. A. MCCORKLE

Foreword

There is a light whose magnetic power leads ever on to the accomplishment of high ideals and to the pursuit of happiness—it is of this light and its influence upon our lives that we wish now to speak

Vanity Fair

Finding The Light

Clytie, content with water nymphs to dwell,
Lolled on mossy cushions deep and green;
Toyed her time away in misty sea-green laces,
Gamboled sprite-like in her jeweled palace shell.

In sport she went to hear the mermaid sing,
Listening—heard enchanting songs,
Of enlightening light above the sea
Where sea-folk never dared to go before.

In her nautilus float one summer eve,
Sailing upward and dreaming of the light,
Clytie awoke on a wooded isle
As the purple dawn turned to gold.

The alluring light drew Clytie's heart
Till days of yearning went by—Then—
Miracle divine—Clytie became
A flower of the sun—ever facing the light.

—EASTER SOUDERS, '32.

College

An Appreciation

THE VIRGINIAN Staff wishes to acknowledge the co-operation of the Faculty and the Student Body in publishing the VIRGINIAN of 1931. We have endeavored to represent every phase of college life. Such a portrayal would have been impossible, we realize, without the never-ending encouragement and assistance of our advisers

Revelation

The depths of a darkening, chilling sea:
The light of a glowing, warming sun.

A horse, plodding a muddy road;
A plane, dipping, circling, gliding.

Slaves at the galley, breathing hard;
A whistle, a puff of steam, a ship in the distance.

A guttering candle, a bare cold room:
Button-touched brilliancy, soft carpets, deep chairs.

Ignorance, blindness, darkness:
A ray of beauty, of truth, a steadfast gleam
—Knowledge, light.

—ELEANOR DAVIS, '32.

Fulfillment

Clytie watched the gray of early dawn envelop her island. The turtles, anchoring her shell carriage to a jagged rock, made the only sounds that broke the silence all around. The little brook, whispering softly, admonished everything to keep still and wait.

The fiery blaze of color that suddenly brightened the sky awed Clytie. Fascinated, she watched the world about her change as the Sun King rode higher and higher. Lured onward, she stooped to pick the diamonds that sparkled where before only dew had lain; she caught at balls of light and tossed them into the air, wove wreaths of brilliant flowers and held them high before her dazzling god.

Thus she passed her days—teasing the King for a smile—until she became a glowing sunflower. Now laughing and swaying her graceful new body, she spoke to the water, "Of you I shall always be a part but now I belong to him," and with that she raised her golden head, to face forever the Sun King.

Ascension

Sea nymphs danced on floors of sand
Beneath a mist of spray,
Plucked seaweeds and tossed them up
To float on foamy waves,
At last their queen, lured by tales
Of mystic lights beyond the sea,
Left the arms of Neptune
To seek the glowing flame,
Left her shell-lined palace
And her mermaids in the sea,
Travelled upward—toward the woodland,
Guided by a strange desire
To reach the light and hold it—
A flaming ball against a dome of blue.

Arms outstretched to catch the shining rays—
A living soul—
She lifts her eyes, mingles sapphire hue
With glints of fiery gold.

Awakening

Clytie and her friends had always played in the gardens and the forests of the sea-kingdom. They loved to play hide-and-seek among the caves of the sea and to race on their dolphin steeds through the twilight green of their homes.

One day they swam farther than they had ever gone before. It was a wonderful day for playing. As they played in a grand old forest of sea-trees, they waded deeper into its depths and suddenly came upon a wonderful palace. Its pearly walls illumined all the water around them. They gazed in awe at the columns of coral that supported the domed rotunda in the center of the palace. As they watched, a mermaid came to the door and beckoned them to enter. They came half fearfully, but with an eagerness they had never felt before. The interior was more dazzling than the exterior. Myriads of mermaids swam swiftly to and fro. Finally, they were led to a small room where a mermaid told them they might stay.

Then began such days of fun as they had never known. They played from morning till night in the gardens of sea-lilies, anemones and of many others, the names of which they did not know. Everything they saw was more wonderful than anything they had ever beheld before.

They were in the gorgeous palace a long time, and each day was full of play and joy; they had no wish for anything else; this was enough. One day Clytie and her friends were tired after a long day of play, and they sat in one of the rooms of the palace. All was quiet, save for the swish of the water around the building. Suddenly, they heard a sound, faint at first, then louder. Somebody was singing in a strain the like of which they had never heard. The song was of a wonderful light and of a new joy in life—of a light and a joy that led one onward and upward to a still greater light and a still greater joy.

The Adventurer

Watch her—
She trembles with unwonted hopes,
With longings—with vague unrests—
Though life trips and beats about,
Though others come with work and play,
Beseeching: "Here lie your interests,"
She does not heed.

Hot glowing fires
Flash radiant from her eyes,
Her steady gaze is fixed above,
Scarce moving, her lips eagerly
Repeat a soft refrain:
"I cannot stay in these low places—
"Up—ever upward I seek—and seek—
"I cannot stay"

Courage breathes from out her very soul.
Exulting, she begins to rise
Swiftly steadily
Until bewildered,
She stands upon the shores
Of a strange new world.

—VIRGINIA FULTZ, '32.

Activities

The Journey

Up through the silent waters of the ocean at night,
Scattering emerald bubbles in its wake,
Sped Clytie's sea-shell chariot.
Water nymphs in their rocky caves on the floor of the sea
Stirred uneasily, their dreams disturbed by the rushing of Clytie's turtle steeds.
Up. Up. Up! Faster, faster, faster!
Tiny points of gleaming brightness changed the water
From darkness and mystery into a sea
Shining with the light of hope and joy.
At length, the surface of the water!
Trembling and awed at the newness of it all,
Clytie climbed upon the moss-covered shore of a wooded isle,
Lost in wonder and expectation
Waiting—waiting—waiting.

—GRACE VIRGINIA WOODHOUSE, '32.

The Honor System

To live our life at its best, to grow into wider freedom, to make and accept the pervasive college spirit, to leave Farmville a little stronger than we found it—for this the Honor System came into being and for this the Student Government Association exists.

Dazzling Brightness

I wonder if Clytie forgot
The sea nymphs and the mermaids,
Forgot the gold fish and the turtles
Kept within her garden grotto,
Forgot the carriage made of sea shells;
Forgot the cave with heart of pearls,
Forgot them all—
In the dazzling brightness of the sun?

What is this we call living—
Wishing—striving to attain?
Will it make us forget—
Forget the mermaid who
Pointed out the light;
Forgot the steeds that drew
Us onward, upward,
Upward . . . onward,
Till at last we saw
The brightness of the sun?

Fulfillment

The world was awake—sparkling, glowing.
Morning had come—
Night had gone—
There was light!

Light of the morning clear and bright,
Light of the stars in the darkening night,
Light of the moon on the desert old,
Light of new birth on a dying soul.

Merry is the heart when day is come,
Free, uplifted when night is gone,
Elated, as when a victory won—
Fulfillment——

My Isle of Dreams

Early the sea gull cries to me,
"Come away! Come away, across the sea—
Follow me! Follow me to your 'Isle of Dreams'
Fairer than fair the light there beams."

"Fairer than fair"—'tis true. For there
Blooms many a flower: Scarlet cordias
Flame on the vine. Pale roses deride
The splendor of fields where the lilies abide.

From rose hybiscus by the gate,
Emanating perfumes that intoxicate,
From early morn till late at night
Bluebird and cardinal are in flight.

Sand faintly pink, 'neath the rushing waves
Holds my eye—my heart enslaves:
The ocean drifting far and wide
Reflects the blue where sea-gulls cried.

And cedar trees that cover the hills
Shadow nooks that harbor daffodils . . .
On my island of dreams the ever-blending
Brings peace and beauty and joy unending.

—MARTHA VON SCHILLING, '32.

Vanity Fair

Light

In wonder Clytie watched the coming dawn;
The trees and flowers heavy yet with dew.
The fragrant meadows, the silver-noted birds,
The rustling forests etched against the blue.

And dazed she saw the beauty as a dream,
Till suddenly—the eastern sky did blaze
With blending light, the glorious sun had come,
The purple curtains of the night to raise.

And Clytie sat with her heart in her eyes
To watch the golden chariot, and its ray
That fell upon the waking world with life,
Until the sunset marked the end of day.

Then tears of loneliness filled her longing eyes;
So, in his great compassion and his love
The sun did make her beauty flow'ry fair,
That radiant she might smile at him above.

And thus she lifts her head to him each day,
To drink in all the beauty of his light,
As o'er the world he travels fast and far
To raise the purple shadows of the night.

—LOULIE MILLNER, '32.

Laughter and the Joke

Ah—a joke—
Listen. Gay, flamboyant
Laughter echoes!
Hearts break,
But smiles must play.
Catch the words—?
They thrill the soul.
Though tears and grief abound,
Laugh and be heard,
Act the fool,
Rob-rob the thief!
Punchinello, actor, clown,
Drown their troubles
In a pool of wit—
Effervescing, whirling, bubbling wit!

—R. FLOYD.

Jokes

Waiter: "Are you Hungary?"

Broker: "Yes, Siam."

Waiter: "Den Russia to the table and I'll Fiji."

Broker: "All right, Sweden my coffee and Denmark my bill."

Count that day lost
Whose low descending sun
Finds somewhere a funny column
Without a single pun.

Then there's Clara Giles who thought that girls on campus belonged to the Campus League.

John: "I want to ask you one question, sweetheart."

Jessie: "What is it?"

John: "If you'd never met me, would you love me just the same?"

Many a poor boob merely gargles instead of drinking deep of the fountain of knowledge.

In some of the colleges they haze freshmen by making them study.

Ferrell: "Shall we dance or talk?"

"Liz.": "I'm so tired—let's dance."

To the days of our childhood
Our fond memory flies,
When we colored ourselves
With Easter egg dyes.

Teacher: "Give the names of the three most prominent gardens in history."

Young American: "Eden, Madison Square, and Mary."

Mr. French: "When water becomes ice, what is the greatest change that takes place?"

"Mutt" Armstrong: "The price."

"So, your son got his B. A. and M. A.?"

"Yes, but PA still supports him."

Class Treasurer's Lament

Lives of students all remind me
Honest toil is not the best;
Every day there grow behind me
Bigger patches on my dress.
On my frock once new and lovely
Now are spots of many hues,
All because my classmates linger
In the payment of their dues.
Come now, folks, be gentle with me.
Pay your taxes, one and all,
Else when winter winds are blowing
I shall have no dress at all.

Martha Kello says a circle is a line which meets its other end without ending.

Of course you have heard of the African Whiffle bird which flies backwards, because he doesn't give a darn where he's going: he just wants to see where he's been.

Elizabeth Hunter thinks the seat of learning is a davenport.

The cynic cannot
See the lassies,
Poor, foolish sap
Forgot his glasses.

S. T. C.: "It takes me fifteen minutes to dress in the morning."

H. S.: "It takes me only ten."

S. T. C.: "But I wash."

We have a lingering suspicion that the henpecked professor gave the following essay a good mark:

"Patrick Henry was not a very bright boy. He had blue eyes and light hair. He got married, and then he said: 'Give me liberty or give me death!'"

Charlie Loveday: "Um-ah-er-er-ah—!!"

Jeweler (to his assistant): "Bring that tray of engagement rings here, Henry."

Adele (at government meeting): "Have you ever been up before me?"

Louise M.: "I don't know. What time do you get up?"

The teacher was putting questions to the class.
"What do we call a man who keeps on talking and talking when people are no longer interested?"

"Please sir," replied a boy. "a teacher."

The trouble with most graduates after commencement is that they don't commence.

Lady: "See here, this milk isn't pure."

Milkman: "Madam, to the pure all things are pure."

Helen C.: "Martha seems to be wandering in her mind."

Ann G.: "Well, she can't stray far."

Evelyn Simpson: "What part of the cow do the chops come from?"

Gazelle: "Don't you know?"

Evelyn: "Do you?"

Gazelle: "Haven't you ever heard of a cow licking its chops?"

There's the bright child who said that the sins of omission were the sins that we ought to have committed and haven't.

Doris W.: "O, Sir, catch that man! He wanted to kiss me."

Sir: "That's all right. There'll be another along in a minute."

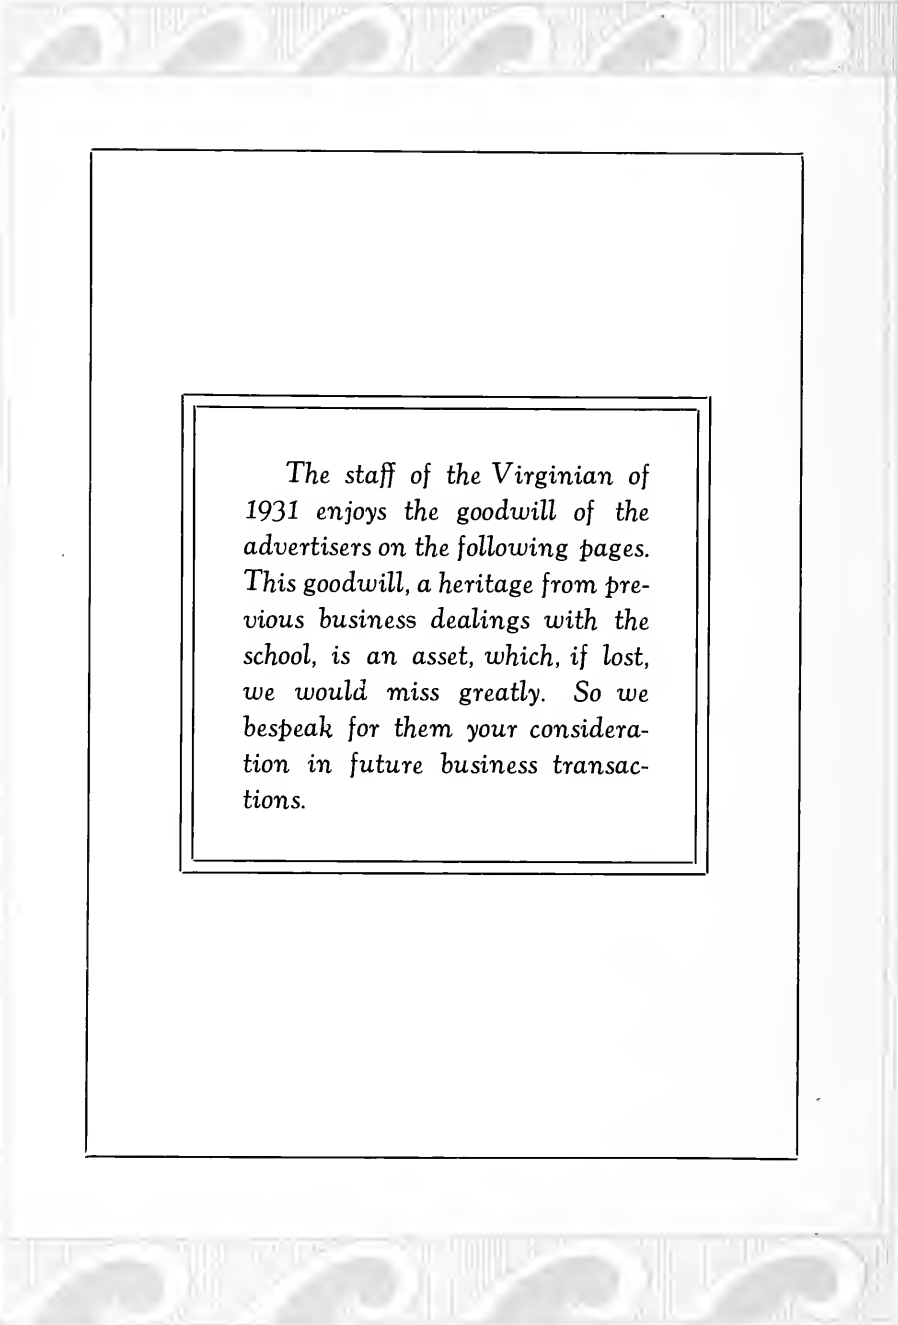

Mrs.: "Did you put in fresh water for the goldfish, Mary?"

Mary: "No, mum. They ain't drunk up what I gave them yesterday."

Mary Warren says that fatal diseases are the worst.

By the time the average college boy of today succeeds in accumulating the horsehide, the pigskin, the coonskin, and finally, the sheepskin, poor father hasn't much hide left either.

A typewriter ad says children do better in school if they don't learn writing. The signatures of famous men seem to bear out this theory too.

The staff of the Virginian of 1931 enjoys the goodwill of the advertisers on the following pages. This goodwill, a heritage from previous business dealings with the school, is an asset, which, if lost, we would miss greatly. So we bespeak for them your consideration in future business transactions.
